A Virginia Woman, Who was Accessory to Her Husband's Death,

Is Hanged Before an Appreciative Audience in Richmond.

The Murderess Willing to Die Because She Knew She was "Going to Heaven."

She Confesses Her Crime Before Going on the Gallows.

Special Disputch.

RICHMOND, VA., Sept. 14.—Several thousand persons of all sizes, sexes, and colors assembled in the neighborhood of the Henrico jail in this city this morning, attracted there by the execution of Barbara Miller, who was convicted of being an accessory to the mur-der of her husband, Daniel Miller. Charles Lee, the paramour of Barbara Miller, was hung on the third of August, but the excitement manifested on the part of the public was twice as great to-day as when Lee paid the peualty of his crime. She is the first woman hung in Richmond since 1852, when the notorious Jane Williams was executed near the city almshouse for the mur-der of Mrs. Winston, and is about the fourth or fifth ever hung in Virginia. Early this or fifth ever hung in Virginia. Early this morning crowds of people from every direction, some from counties adjacent to Richmond, attracted by a morbid curiosity, were seen, wending their way to the place of execution. Some eight or ten special guards were on duty to preserve order, but in such a crowd their attempt was futile, and for hours the crowd was swaying backward and forward, and were yelling and talking.

This morning the woman was in cheerful spirits and ate heartily. Hor breakfast consisted of a pint of coffee, fried tripe, yeal cutlets, calces, and bread. Last night she asked Sheriff Southward to write out her last con-lets, cakes, and bread. Last night she asked Sheriff Southward to write out her last confession, and in making it she said: "This is my last statement about the death of my husband, Daniel Miller. The first time I had a talk with Lee about the killing of Miller was last September. At that time I objected to it. In November, I think, Charles bought some In November, I think, Charles bought some poisen and I made some ginger tea and Charles put the poisen in it and gave it to Mr. Miller himself. I knew about it, though it did not kill him. It seemed to cure his pain in the side, and he got much better afterward. did not kill him. It seemed to cure his pain in the side, and he got much better afterward. Charles and myself talked about killing Mr. Miller nearly every day after the poisoning. On Saturday before Mr. Miller was killed Charles told me when I left tog to Richmond; that he intended to kill Daniel that night, and I expected to find him dead when I got home that night. The first time that I ever consented for Charles to kill Daniel was on the thirteenth day of February, and he killed him on the fourteenth, as we both agreed to do. I never talked to Charles about the killing after I consented to it until he killed him. When Charles left the house that morning I knew it was to kill my husband, as Charles and myself had talked the matter over the night before, and Charles acted with my consent when he killed my husband. When he got back to his home he had blood on his coat, vest, and pants. I washed all his clothes afterward. If Charles and myself had not been arrested we would have been married between that time and Christmas. Charles worried me to let him kill my husband until I consented to let him kill my husband until I consented to let him kill my husband until I consented to let him do it. He killed him at my suggestion. I was not present when he killed him. I am willing to die for my guilt, as I knew I am going to Heaven."

When the above confession was written out the woman signed it in the presence of the sheriff, saying, as she did so, that it was the last statement she would make on earth.

This morning religious services were held in her cell. They were conducted by Revs.

Inst statement she would make on earth.

This morning religious services were held in her cell. They were conducted by Revs. Boswell and Ferguson, of the Baptist church. The cell was crowded with colored church members, and shouting, praying, and singing lasted from early in the morning until 12 o'clock. There was also a prayer meeting held in the woman's cell last night from 10:30 until 2 o'clock. Two colored women remained with the prisoner the remainder of the night. When the sheriff entered the cell this morning early. sheriff entered the cell this morning early, Barbara said, as a smile played over her face, "My cell was lighted with angels last night." The night before she dreamed that three angels carried her to heaven just as the sheriff was about to put the noose around her neck, and that Lee came down in the shape of a spirit and beckoned her to fly heaven-

On being asked if she intended to wear on being asked if she intended to wear shoes to the scaffold, she said, as a satisfactory grin covered her face, "No, sir, I am going in my white stockings and get golden slippers in the eternal home." Just previous to her departure for the gallows her spiritual adviser, Rev. George Boswell, lined the hymn, "Amazing Grace." "As the minister said. "Once ing Grace." "As the minister said, "Once was lost but now I am free." Barbara shouted, "Yes, I is." "T'was grace that family "Yes, I is." "T'was grace that taught my heart to feel," exclaimed the minister, "ever was," shouted Barbara, and all along she ejaculated after the same manner. She then offered up a ten minutes' prayer. Her face was to the wall, and she moved to and fro, the rapidity of her movements being in proportion to the amount of shouting she did. Other prayers followed this one, and at 12 o'clock Sheriff Southward went into the cell and announced that the hour for the execu-tion had arrived. The visitors departed, and the condemned woman immediately followed on behind the sheriff and his deputy, Maj.

On her way to the scaffold she shook hands with one or two friends, and now and then wiped her eyes with a white handkerchief which she carried in her left hand. She was attired in a Swiss muslin dress made at her suggestion. It had two flounces, and around her neck she wore white lace, a large bouquet of orange blossoms was pinned on her bosom, and she always were large red earrings. In ascending the scaffold she hung her skirts several times, and each time stooped down and unfastened them from the steps. Upon reaching the top of the scaffold, which was twenty feet from the ground she sat was twenty feet from the ground, she sat down in a chair and prayer was offered in her behalf by Rov. George Boswell, who took occasion to reprove some young men who sat above his head on the wall, making noise during the selemn moments. The deputy sheriff subsequently drew his

The deputy sheriff subsequently drew his pistol to prevent those on the wall from jumping down on the scaffold. This was after the drop was sprung but before the body was cut down. The sheriff read the death warrant, and when he had concluded Barbara stepped to the edge of the scaffold and endeavored to make a speech. She talked a few moments in an indistinct way. The only audible werds were, "Take a lesson from poor me. Meet me in Heaven. Farewell to you all." Meet me in Heaven. Farewell to you all."
The noose was then adjusted, the black cap placed over her head, and everything put in readiness for the drop to be sprung.

After the black cap had been drawn tightly around her neck she muttered a few more indistinct words. The sheriff stepped forindistinct words. The sheriff stepped forward, waved his handkerchief, and quickly dropped it. This was the signal, and instantly the drop was sprung, and in the twinkling of an eye the body shot through the opening, dropping seven feet. Death tensued from strangulation, the body being so light as not to break the neck. She weighed 97 pounds, and measured five feet three inches. She struggled four minutes and a half, and her muscles then ceased to move. and her muscles then ceased to move The drop was sprung at 12:20 and the body cut down twenty minutes afterward, place in a coffiin, and taken to Henrice for burial.

The inspector of buildings addressed a lettor to the commissioners yesterday asking that the appropriation by congress for keeping the school houses in repair be not less than $35,000. The inspector states that the thau $35,000. The inspector states that the appropriations for the last two years have been so small that little or no repairing could be done, and that the buildings could only be kept habitable. The wooden buildings new occupied for school purposes especially need repairs as in some cases, the walls and other partions are rapidly going to decay. These buildings, he says, also stand in great need of painting, and the plain boards, in many instances, serve to form a chordons aspect. Fone of these buildings, of which there are seventeen in the city, says Mr. Entwistle, are scarcely in the city, says Mr. Entwistle, are scarcely habitable, and should be thoroughly renovated and repaired. There are also three frame schools in the county, which stand in frame schools in the county, which stand in need of repairs.

The buildings used as schools, and not erected as school buildings, are in no wise adapted to the use to which they are put.

Forty-four brick schools added to the others make sixty-five buildings, the major part of which are heated by steam. These all need extensive repairs, except the nineteen built within the past four years, which of course are in good condition. Only four of these have been kalsomined, and the other four should be attended to as soon as possible. The appropriations for the mat four years four should be atcended to as soon as possible. The appropriations for the past four years have been cut down $26,000 by congress, which is the cause for the bad condition of the schools. Last year the inspector asked for $36,000 for repairs, but congress reduced the appropriation down to $15,000, out of which the commissioners could allow but $4,000 for repairs. The enpenses of the schools, by reason of the small appropriations, had to be curtailed so that but little of needed repairs could be made. It is urged that hereafter the present plan of having not over eight or ten rooms in one having not over eight or ten rooms in one building, and no building over two stories in height, be adhered to. This plan, states the inspector, will afford superior protection in case of fire or panic, and will reduce the ex-penses for heating. The report then gives a statement of the repairs needed in each building and names the cost of constructing buildings on the latter plan.

Mr. Fred Harvey, a clerk in the sixth auditor's office, died very suddenly yesterday morning about 4 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Jackson, on Thirteenth street, between Mrs. Jackson, on Thirteenth street, between D and E northwest, of rheumatism of the heart. Mr. Harvey was at his office, and during the day previous spat up some blood, and at night went to see Dr. Johnson. A physician was immediately sent for, but before arriving Mr. Harvey was dead. He leaves a wife, who is in Boston, whither he was going this morning to join her. She was immediately telegraphed of his death. The body was embalmed, and will be taken on to Boston to-morrow for interment, a friend coming on for the remains. Mr. Harvey was about 48 years of age. Sheriff's Report.

Under date of May 16, 1883, Mr. Isaiah Cook, formerly sheriff of Skowhegan, Me., writes as follows: "I have been afflicted for over twenty (29) years with a weakness of the kidneys and liver, and have had severe pains in the back and sides, which were brought upon me in the first place by exposure during my stay in California during the early settlement of the land of gold. At times my water troubled me very much, and after trying many different means without receiving any benefit, I was induced to try Hunt's Remedy, although I was much prejudiced against it and all other medicines. I purchased a bottle at Cushing's drug store, here in Skowhogau, and I found that the first bottle relieved all pains in the back and sides; and I have, in my family, used five bottles in all, and have found it a medicine of real merit and of great value, and have gladly recommended it to many of my friends and neighbors, who universally praise it in high terms.
